IN THE NIGER DELTA.

Horrible Superstitions Prevailing
in that Part of Africa.

Lizard and Snake Worship—A Mother Rejoicing to See Her Child Devoured by a Python—Good Work Done by Christian Missionaries.

In the last issue of the "Proceedings of the Royal Geographical Society," London,
there is an unusually interesting article on the "Niger Delta" in Africa, of which the following synopsis has been made for the New York Ledger:

The 110s represents to-day the ruling people of the extreme lower Niger, of Brass, of New Calabar, Bony and Opopo. In times past they were fanatical adherents of a savage type of animistic religion. Like the majority of the Africans, they did not know or conceive of the existence of one supreme God, but embodied a number of natural principles in the forms of certain animals, or in a concrete representation of
"fetiches" or idols.

Each little community had its "totem," or sacred animal, in whose species the ancestral spirit—the soul of the tribe, so to speak—was supposed to dwell. Thus in Brass they worshipped the python snake; in Bony the monitor lizard. Only nine or ten years ago this animal worship was so real that the British authorities in the Oil Rivers were compelled to afford it a certain amount of recognition. Europeans were forbidden to kill the sacred serpent of Brass, or the still more sacred serpent of Bony, and were heavily fined by their Consuls if they infringed this prohibition.

On one occasion, an agent of Messrs. Hatton & Cookson's firm found a large python in his house and killed it. When the mis-deed became known the Brass people made a descent on the factory, dragged the agent
out of the house on to the beach, tied him up by his thumbs, spat in his mouth, and inflicted other indignities on him. Then they broke open the store, and took out 200 worth of goods, which they confiscated.
The British consul, hearing of the disturbance, arrived in Brass, considered the case,
and was unable to afford the agent any redress, because he was supposed to have brought the punishment upon himself.

At Bony the monitor lizard became a sacred animal. They devoured the Europeans' fowls, turkeys, ducks and geese with impunity; they might lie across the road or doorway of houses with their six feet of length, and savagely lash the shins
of people who attempted to pass them with their whip-like serrated tails, and if you wounded or killed one of them, there was no end of a to-do. You were assaulted or robbed by the natives, harangued by the Council on board of a man of war, and possibly fined into the bargain.

In other parts of the delta it might be the snake, or the crocodile, or some water-bird that was worshipped, but nowhere was this zoology carried to greater lengths than at Bony and Brass. For its effect on the aborigines, which has been of the greatest benefit to the well-being of Europeans and natives alike, we owe our thanks not to the intervention of naval or consular officials, nor to the beneficent influence of traders, but to the quiet, unobtrusive labors of the agents of the Church Missionary Society, who, by winning the natives from these absurd practices, have brought about such a change of affairs that now the python is promptly killed at Brass whenever it makes its appearance, and the monitor lizard is re-ligated to the woods and swamps. Indeed, as regards the latter animal, there was rather a curious revolution of feeling.

About four years ago, when Bony Town
was infested with numbers of these gross sluggish lizards, the missionaries screwed the courage of the Bony converts (who then meant almost the entire population of the place) to the sticking point. A grand slaughter of lizards was arranged to take place on Easter Sunday. As soon as the morning bells of the mission church rang out a large number of Bony men and boys armed themselves with machetes and sticks and commenced the slaughter of the lizards. By the end of the day there was not one left alive in the town, and so great were the numbers slaughtered that the stench almost brought about a sickness, and for four or five days the town was unap-proachable.

But in slaughtering the lizards much else
of the old superstition seemed to go, and that event marked the real revolution, and a turning towards better things on the part of the Bony people. A change almost similarly abrupt put an end to the python worship at Brass. Before that time, if a python seized a child in the street in its coils and slavered it with its vicious saliva,
the mother—so far from interfering to save
it—must stand by and call out her thanks, and commend her friends and relatives to rejoice with her that the god-python had so honored her family as to devour her child.

OOZY-HEADED PEOPLE.

Beware of Persons Between Your Ears
and Mouth There Is No Partition.

You would not pour precious wine into a cup that was worm-eaten, or use as a confident of one of those "leaky vessels" of society that, like corporation water-carts,
seem to have been made for the express purpose of letting out what they take in.
There is this difference, however, says the New York Ledger, between the perforated punchoon and the leaky brain—the former lets the dust and the latter is pretty sure to lose a dust.

Beware of oozing-headed people, between whose ears and mouth there is no partition.
Before you make a bosom friend of any man
be sure that he is secret-tight. The mischief that the non-retentives do is infinite. In war they often mar the best-laid schemes
and render futile the most profound strategy. In social life they sometimes set whole communities by the ears, frequently break up families and are the cause of innumerable misfortunes, miseries and crimes. In business they spoil many a promising speculation and involve hundreds in bankruptcy and ruin. Therefore, be very careful to whom you trust information of vital importance to your own interests or to the interests of those you hold dear.

Every man has a natural inclination to communicate what he knows, and if he does not do so it is because his reason and judgment are strong enough to control this inherent propensity. When you find a friend who can exercise absolute power over the communicative instinct—if he may so term
it—wear him in your heart, "yes, in your heart of hearts." If you have no such friend, keep your own counsel.

The sickening spectacle of wrangling
over the diagnosis and treatment of some person in a prominent position by eminent physicians and surgeons in attendance
while the patient is either made to suffer unnecessary torture at their hands or left to die under their malpractice, is becoming a matter not only of serious import, but of altogether too frequent occurrence.

THE RISCUED PASSENGERS.

How They were Transferred from the Sinking Ship.

A Philadelphia dispatch of the 22d
inst., contains the following graphic account of the rescue of the Dan-mark's passengers: The steamer Missouri has arrived here with 365 of the passengers of the ill-fated steamer Danmark. Captain Hamilton Merrill, commander of the Missouri, furnishes
the following statement: "We left London with a general cargo for our first trip to Philadelphia March 28th.
On April 5th we sighted the steamer
Danmark flying a signal of distress.
We bore down on the steamer and found her disabled. Captain Knudsen, her commander, reported that the tail end of his shaft was broken, and he wished me to take the vessel to New York. Owing to the state of the weather, and because of the fact that I was not prepared to accommodate such a number of people, I declined to accede to his request, but offered instead to tow his vessel to the nearest port.
This offer Captain Knudsen accepted.

RESCUING THE PASSENGERS.

"At 7 A. M. the Danmark signaled:
'We are leaking considerably. There is now three feet of water in the attoli, and gaining rapidly.' I asked what should I do, and the signal came,
'Keep on towing.' Two hours later the Danmark again signaled us: 'Dan-mark is sinking. We must abandon the ship. Will you take our passengers?' Without a moment's hesitation I signaled back: 'Yes, I will take all on board and do the best I can.' I then cut the tow-line and we dropped down to the Danmark. Chief Officer Glenn of that vessel came on board the Missouri and informed me of the condition of his ship. He said Captain Knudsen had decided that for the best interests of those on the ship
it would be better to abandon her and get all the people on board the Missouri while there was plenty of time.

A WORK OF GREAT DIFFICULTY.

"A heavy swell was running during all of this terrible day, making the work of removing the people from the sinking ship one of great difficulty, and it was only by the hardest kind of work that we were able to avoid accidents to both the boats and the boats. The women and children were removed first, and after them the male passengers and crew. At 2 P. M. we finished the work of transferring the passengers, having consumed nearly five hours, and getting everybody,
with the exception of the officers, safely on the Missouri without a single accident of any kind. An hour later the barometer began falling, and I sent word to Captain Knudsen and his officers to leave the ship and come on board the Missouri, and after getting some provisions from the Dan-mark, which had now settled very perceptibly in the water, that vessel was finally abandoned, Captain Knudsen being the last to leave the ship. I then counted heads and found that we had, in addition to our own crew of 45 men, 669 passengers, and determined to make for the Azores Islands. I expressed my determination to the Captain of the Danmark, and he agreed that this was the best course to pursue.

"On April 10 we arrived at St.
Michael's. On April 11 we landed 370 of the passengers and crew on the Danmark, including Captain Knudsen, at St. Michael's. We sailed from St. Michael's with 365 people from the Danmark, including eight of the crew
of that vessel."

An Expression of Delight.

"About a week ago," says a Los Angeles, Cal., druggist, "A Chinaman came in with a large shoulder. I sold him a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and guaranteed that it would cure him. He came in again last night, and as soon as he got inside the door began to swing his arms over his head like an Indian club swinger. I thought the blamed fellow had a fit, but he finally stopped long enough to say:
'Medicine velly fine, velly good; all same make me feel plenty good.'" Chamberlain's Pain Balm is without an equal for sprains, rheumatism, croup, colic, and all other pains. For sale
by Osburn & Shoemaker.

Pennsylvanians are wild over the discovery of gold in that State.

In Three Days.

Three days is a very short time in which to cure a bad case of rheumatism, but it can be done, if the proper treatment is adopted, as will be seen by the following from James Lambert
of New Brunswick, Ill.: "I was badly afflicted with rheumatism in the hips and legs, when I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It cured me in three days. I am all right today; and I would urge on everyone who is afflicted with that terrible disease to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm and get well at once." For sale by Osburn & Shoemaker.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winstlow's Soothing Syrup should always be used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays
all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. 25 cents a bottle.

In some of the Maine towns last week one could buy good apples for 75 cents a barrel.

A Great Chance.

It is astonishing that as enterprising a county as Washoe with the greatest mountains in the world for snow on one side and the loveliest valley land on the other has never tested the artesian well proposition. There is every reason to believe it would be a success, and if a success at all it would be a big success, on account of the peculiar conditions. In the first place the rock formations are much more favorable than further east. At White Plains the well sunk by the railroad over twenty-three hundred feet deep, was in lava full of cracks and with no possible show for regular strata leading up to the snow belt where the water must come from. Here the rock is sedimentary, at least in very large sections, and the wells would lie right under the big mountains so that the chance to get a "gusher" would be excellent. Our valleys are much lower than Sierra Valley where wells are found under the clay in abundance. The land in Lemmon Valley, Spanish Springs and elsewhere is not the rough, boulder beds the first settlers had to clear up and level, but smooth beds of soil or handsome benches, which would be ready for the plow as soon as the brush was cleared off. There is no field in the United States as favorable as Washoe county for such an improvement.

There is a preacher in Oregon who refuses to eat. He is thought, says the Carson Appeal, to be in training for a call to some Nevada pastorate.

An Open Letter.

CHARLESTON, S. C., April 24.—Bishop Newman of Omaha has written an open letter on the Southern question to the News and Courier. Referring to his speech at the Virginia conference he says: "You have raised a question to settle as to whites and blacks. We have a race question to settle as to the American born and foreign born. With you it is a question with your own people with us it is the North against all of Europe. You have an easy task. The South has not been overrun by foreigners indifferent to our institutions; this is what I meant by the 'purest American blood' was to be found in Florida, Carolina, Georgia and Virginia loyal to the Union, the Union of the fathers. I suggested to the Administration to put men in office in the South of high repute who will promote Southern prosperity." It is rumored that Harrison is about to carry out this plan regardless of party lines in the South.

Oklahoma Mail.

WASHINGTON, Apr. 24.—Secretary Blaine is suffering from a slight attack of lumbago. He remained at home to-day.

A telegram was received from Superintendent Christian, of the Railway Mail Service, at Guthrie, Oklahoma, asking that the Santa Fe road be instructed to deliver the mails there. He had made arrangements to forward the mail to Linsbom by stage.

A Typical Crank.

NEW YORK, April 24.—George Francis Train is indulging in a fast. It is now six days since he has eaten anything. He says he can't tell how long his fast is to last, as he is absolutely controlled by "Psychic." He drinks one glass of water each day and spends an hour in a Turkish bath. He says he thinks "Psychic" is object in making him fast is to reduce his flesh.

No More Sunday Freight.

NEW YORK, April 24.—Not only on the Michigan Central, but on all the Vanderbilt roads the freight trains will be stopped on Sunday after May 1st. The experiment was made at the direct agency of Cornelius.

Gloomy and Dejected.

BRUSSELS, April 24.—Boulanger, Count Dillon and six other Boulangists left for England yesterday. They appeared gloomy and dejected. No crowd witnessed their departure nor was there any cheering or enthusiasm. The party sailed from Ostend under similar conditions. Rochefort remained here, but it is reported that he will be expelled shortly.

LONDON, April 24.—Boulanger and party arrived at Dover this morning. A large number of friends received them with cheers. The passage from Ostend was rough and the General suffered from sea sickness. The police commissary from Calais watched the party, on behalf of the French Government. The General and his friends at once proceeded to London.

Boulanger arrived in London this afternoon and took up his headquarters at the Hotel Bristol. A large crowd of his admirers gathered in front of the hotel and extended a cordial welcome.

A crowd of several hundred persons, mostly friends, awaited in the Charing Cross railroad station the arrival of the train on which Boulanger traveled from Dover. When the General emerged from the train he was heartily cheered. There was a mixed crowd outside of the station, which alternately hooted and cheered him. Although it was announced that Rochefort would remain in Brussels, he accompanied Boulanger and Count Dillon to London.

The crowd, which was estimated at 2,000, groaned and hissed as well as cheered him. The public generally are apathetic concerning Boulanger's presence in the city.

An explosion occurred in the Brancepeth colliery at Durham. Five persons were killed.

A Murdered Settler.

GUTHRIE, Oklahoma, April 24.—A rising of the Indians is reported on the border, on account of the disappointed boomers settling on Indian land, and troops have been sent to the scene of the trouble. Another man, named J. C. Ryland, of Franklin county, Mo., was killed here on Monday by claim jumpers. A posse pursued the murderers, three in number, and discovered one in the bushes and shot him down. His name is unknown.

PORT RENO, April 24.—A settler named Goodwin, who arrived yesterday from Oklahoma, reported to the Post Commander that he and three others were fired upon by a party of twelve Texan claim jumpers. Goodwin was the only one who escaped, the other three were killed. A detachment of troops have been sent to the scene to investigate and arrest the guilty party.

More People Than Land.

ST. LOUIS, April 24.—A large meeting of Oklahoma boomers, who failed to get claims, was held at Arkansas City last night to organize a Janesville-Cherokee strip colony, the members of which were to go immediately into the strip and take claims. Several hundred voted to go to the strip at once, and it is believed that 200 settlers will leave to-morrow, and if they do thousands of others will follow. A meeting was also held at the north line of Oklahoma yesterday and many settlers squatted on the strip. This movement is unlawful and the squatters will, in all likelihood, be driven out by the military.

WASHINGTON, Apr. 24.—The Adjutant General has received the following telegram from General Crook, dated Chicago 23d:

In the telegram dated Oklahoma, yesterday, General Merritt states that he anticipates no trouble which will require the active interference of the troops. Their presence undoubtedly exercised a salutary influence. There are no reports of trouble elsewhere, which is an indication that peace prevails.

A Narrow View.

ALBANY, N. Y., Apr. 24.—In the Senate this morning, Pierce asked the privilege of the floor for Hon. Oliver Mowatt, Premier of Ontario, but Murphy objected, saying that under the rules, a friend of his had been refused admission, and aside from that, he objected to any courtesy being extended to any dependent of the British Crown. Mowatt was excluded.

But Little Damage.

AUCKLAND, April 24.—The steamer Mariposa, Captain Hayward, hence April 22d for San Francisco, returned to this port with the flag in her fore-hold on fire. The flames were quenched and she will proceed for her destination this afternoon. The fire did but little damage.

An English Race.

LONDON, Apr. 24.—The Epsom spring meeting, city and suburban handicap, mile and a quarter, was won by Laybourne colt. Goldseeker, Lord Dudley's horse. Fullerton, second, Sir R. Jardines colt, Wiseman third. There were twelve starters.

Fully Prepared.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Surgeon General Hamilton said to an Associated Press reporter in reply to a question asked as to the probability of another epidemic of yellow fever in Florida: "In view of the case reported at Sanford yesterday I should not be surprised if there be a considerable number of cases. The danger chiefly lies in the towns and cities which escaped the plague last year. In the places visited then, there are a large proportion of acclimated, who have had the fever, and are therefore safe." "Are you prepared to manage an outbreak, should one occur?" "Yes, much better than ever before. Already I have received messages of inquiry, showing an alarmed state of public feeling, a fear for which there is no foundation." The Surgeon-General added that the State authorities are also much better prepared than ever before, and that there is no evidence of a desire to conceal the facts which proved so disastrous last year.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE

A FEARLESS JOURNALIST.

A Merited Compliment to an Able Writer.

The Carson Appeal of the 23d inst. pays Arthur McEwen the following compliment: It is definitely settled that Arthur McEwen will leave the Examiner and take up his residence in New York. McEwen has always ranked not only as a brilliant journalist, but a perfectly honest and fearless one, and his lance was always set for the shams and humbugs that infest the path of every paper wherever it is published. He despised the pompous strut of incompetents in place, and was mighty quick in gauging the full measure of the fraud he pursued. He was a well-thought man, but the hatred came from a class of people whose hatred one might well be proud of. He first made his mark in Nevada, and will make his mark anywhere he goes as an incisive journalistic writer, who has the courage to write what he thinks.

Terribly Bereaved.

The Winnemucca Silver State of the 23d inst. says: Another death from diphtheria occurred at the County Hospital yesterday, it being that of the fourth and last child of Mrs. Torodet, the woman who remained over here with her sick children while on the way to California. She lost five from the same disease in the States, making nine in all. Her husband came here from California last week, and assisted in taking care of the sick children, three of whom died at the hospital and one on the cars at Iron Point, some miles east of here.

An Unhappy Home.

"I wish my wife would get well or—something," said a husband who had been a rely tied with an invalid wife. It seems a heartless speech, but who can tell the discomforts of a home where the wife is always sick. Poor food, crying children! No wonder the man grows desperate. But if he would get Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for the wife, he would find that the sunshine would return to his home. "Favorite Prescription" is a positive cure for the most complicated and obstinate cases of leucorrhoea, excessive flowing, painful menstruation, unnatural suppressions, prolapsus or falling of the womb, weak back, "female weakness," an-troversion, and retroversion, "bearing down" sensations, chronic constipation, inflammation and ulceration of the womb, inflammation, pain and tenderness of ovaries, accompanied with "internal heat."

It was maintained by the late Horace Greely, that "nothing succeeds like success." If this be true, Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will always be popular, as it never fails. It is intended especially for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough, and is undoubtedly the best and most reliable medicine in use for those diseases. It is decidedly a success. For sale by O. Burn & Shoemaker.

Berry & Novacovich to-day received a full carload of Pioneer flour and a carload of nails.

A WEDDING.

A Couple of Reno's Well-Known Young People Join Hands.

A large and brilliant company assembled yesterday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Twombly on Fifth street to witness the marriage of their daughter, Miss Annie Twombly to Mr. Loring Hart, one of Reno's well-known young men. The ceremony was performed by the pastor of the Congregational Church, Rev. T. Magill, according to the beautiful and impressive ritual of that church. At its close many hearty congratulations were extended to the newly married couple, and numerous good wishes by their many friends; that the voyage on which they had embarked would be pleasant, the sea smooth and wind favorable to wait their bark onward until the haven of peace was reached on the shining shores. Another pleasant feature of the evening was the serenade given by the Hastings cornet band, which discoursed several beautiful airs to the delight of all. The following constitute a partial list of the many presents received:

Silver casket, Wm. B. Twombly. Bible, Mrs. Wm. B. Twombly. Half dozen silver spoons and $20. Mr. and Mrs. Hart. Silver tea set, Mr. and Mrs. Dixon. Clock, R. N. Curtis. Cake basket, Mrs. B. N. San Francisco Meat Market.

With the close of the Lenten season, business in the meat line becomes more active and general. Beef cattle are coming forward freely, mostly in excellent condition. Sheep are in liberal receipt, and the market is well furnished with fat mutton. The supply of calves is ample for all receipts, and there is no occasion for complaint of real being scarce. Hogs plentiful, at slightly reduced figures. Following are the rates for whole carcasses from slaughterers to dealers in San Francisco:

Beef—First quality, 5½¢@6¢; second quality, 5¢; third quality, 4½¢@5¢ per pound.

Veal—Quotable at 5¢@6¢ for large and 6¢@8¢ per pound for small.

Mutton—Quotable at 5¢@5½¢ per pound.

Lamb—Spring, 8¢@9¢ per pound.

Pork—Live Hogs, on foot, grain fed, 6½¢@6¾¢; soft, 5½¢@6¢; dressed, 9¢@9½¢ per pound.

A One-Fifteenth Widow.

The Silver State says that a Gold-coon bachelor is negotiating a matrimonial alliance with the fifteenth widow of a Mormon Apostle who died recently. A picture of the lady sent here for examination shows her to be rather prepossessing in appearance, and our Gold-coon friend might do worse than take her, as having but a small interest in a man heretofore she may know how to appreciate a whole one.

Homele and Then Suicide.

The Winnemucca Silver State of the 23d inst. says: A few days since we gave an account of the killing of Richard Cooper by Ben Jones, a half-breed, in Southern Oregon. It appears that while awaiting the arrival of the Sheriff, Jones made the remark that they would never hang him. In some way he took a pistol from the overcoat of Mike Finn, and discharged its contents into his head above the right ear, the ball coming out of the top of his head. Jones died instantly. The tragedy took place at Denio's ranch.

Man Wants a Tonic.

When there is a lack of electric energy in the system, shown by a sensation of languor and unrest in the morning frequent yawning during the day and disturbed in sleep at night, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters infuses unwonted energy into the enfeebled and nervous, endowing them with muscular energy, an ability to overcome nervousness, headache, biliousness, impaired appetite and a feeble, troublesome stomach, are never safe tonics, even in infinitesimal doses. The Bitters answer the purpose more effectually, and can be relied upon as perfectly safe by the most prudent. Fever and ague, kidney troubles and rheumatism yield to it.

THE CATTLE RANGES.

Sober Second Thought Shows a Better Prospect.

Those who depend upon mother earth direct, are more easily scared than any class of business men and the farming classes are proverbial grumblers at the weather. It is going to be a drouth until the rain sets in then it is sure to be a flood. Nearly every year the cattle men, the wool growers, the grain producers or the farmers, some, or all of them, see ruin staring them in the face. There is no way that can be seen that they can get out but when the time comes they do get out, for nature after all is kind and very seldom cleans up a good manager or industrious farmer who exercises ordinary prudence and industry.

These moralizings are the result of a number of interviews with well informed cattle men, like George Russell, Judge Bigelow, John Sparks and Orlando North, who say that the situation is not so very bad as many people imagine in their business. Mr. Sparks particularly says his range and his cattle never were in better shape. The winter was warm and no cattle died. The calf crop was large and the spring feed excellent and abundant. Mr. North says, that while it is true that the Little Humboldt that waters Paradise Valley is nearly dry, yet summer feed is not bad and his range is not destroyed by any means. Rock Creek which runs through the big ranges of North, Russell & Bradley and Dunphy has as much water as it had at this time one year ago or two years ago. Willow Creek has plenty of water and good feed. The cattle have not been moved and are not likely to be from the Clover Valley range where they have run for four years.

Mr. Russell informed the GAZETTE that the Idaho range was in good shape and they have taken a good many cattle there from the Battle Mountain range as they do every year to fatten for the Chicago market. There is still a good deal of feed on their ranges and their losses thus far are light. By driving to Idaho, Montana or Wyoming they get lots of good feed and strike a strong market many times when the coast is stocked with beef and sales dull. Scott & Co., Byrne Bros. and Sparks & Tinnin do the same nearly every year, and it acts as a safety valve when the Nevada ranges are overstocked or dry. This allows the cattle that remain much better picking and a chance to get through that would be cut off if all the cattle stayed.

Judge Bigelow has letters from his foreman which say that horses and cattle are fat and the range looking as well as ever. If there are summer rains to make feed for next winter all will be well. Elko county has more summer rains than any other part of Nevada usually. The outlook for hay is not entirely gloomy either. Grayson and Hinckley at Beowawe will get a good deal. Many side valleys, like Clover, Star, Ruby and Lamolle in Elko county will get more or less hay. Marzen at Lovelock has a sure thing if the papers report his big well correctly, and that will leave river water for his neighbors' land, so that one big crop ought to be harvested there. The Truckee Meadows has fair prospects, and the feed in the Sierras is as good as it ever was. Lake Tahoe is filling up, and the weather is turning off warm so the alfalfa fairly shoots up.

Hungry Burglars.

Last night the residence of George Humphry on Chestnut street, was entered by burglars. An entrance was effected by breaking a pane of glass in a window close to a back door and unlocking therefrom. Nothing was disturbed except eatables of assorted kinds, including half a box of crackers, a bottle of brandy, bread and cold meats.

Competition Agas.

A party is in Reno studying the feasibility of putting on a line of steam wagons to Virginia City, in competition with the V. & T. R. R. They propose to go up the Loupdown grade with their line and expect to do a big wood and lumber business in addition to general freighting. The steam wagon is gaining on the steam rail train right along.

A Chance for Home Talent.

The Southern Pacific is pretty close about its business generally, but the GAZETTE learns from good authority that the figures are largely in favor of wood as a fuel over coal, on the mountains, and the locomotive fire boxes are to be changed back for wood burning. This is good news for the mountain towns.

Obeys the Law.

Those who, since the 20th inst., have been catching trout to sell, and those who have been purchasing such fish during the above time are warned that a heavy penalty is attached to such offense. This is spawning season for Truckee river trout, and the object of the law is to protect them from annihilation.

A Complete Success.

"Bread on the Waters," rendered last evening at McKissick's Opera House by the graduating class of the Public High School, was well rendered and kindly received by a well filled house. All did well and Sam Mozingo's solo, "Marguerite," was wonderfully applauded.

Long Time to Six O'clock.

Those rounders who, before the decision on the early closing and six o'clock opening law, were in the habit of taking in a half-dozen cocktails before sunrise now complain that it is a "long time to six o'clock."

Another Indian Convict.

The Sheriff of Lassen county, California, arrived per the N. C. & O. last evening with an Indian who he was taking to the Folsom prison for a term of years for an assault with intent to kill.

Sudden Changes of Weather cause Throat Diseases. There is no more effective remedy for coughs, colds, etc., than BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROSCITS. Sold only in boxes of 100.

BREVITIES.

Local and General Intelligence.

John McConaughy of the Truckee Meadows, has purchased the residence property of James Pritchett on the south side of the river. Price, $1400.

The chocolate social at the School for Girls to-morrow night, to which the small admission fee of twenty-five cents will be charged, is certain to be a pleasant affair.

This morning ten cars of the Kirmann & Rickey cattle arrived from Carson on the way to the San Francisco market, and George Humphrey shipped two cars to Colfax.

"THE LITTLE TYCOON."

A Splendid Company of Fifty-two People.

"The Little Tycoon," the much talked of comic opera, will be presented here next Monday night under the personal direction of its author, Willard Spenser. Being of Japanese name, many suppose the opera was suggested by the success of the "Mikado." Such, however, is not the case, as it is claimed that "The Little Tycoon" was written and copyrighted several years before the production of the "Mikado," and that it was not until five years after he had written it that Mr. Spenser had the pleasure of seeing it on the stage. "The Little Tycoon" is a satire on the foreign title-worshipping craze, and only a portion of it is Japanese. Musically, it is said to be bright and catchy, and the stage mounting and costuming is one of the most gorgeous productions on the stage. The setting of the Japanese scene is said to be a perfect work of light and color. This scene is illuminated by means of incandescent lights, a number of which are suspended on a huge Japanese umbrella over the center of the stage. The company presenting the opera is composed of fifty-two people, including Catherine Lin-yard, Hattie Arnold, Mamie Cerbi, R. E. Graham, J. Aldrich Libby, Lloyd Wilson, Joseph Mealy and J. F. McGovern. The company carry their own orchestra, under the direction of Charles Borgman.

Box-sheet now open. Admission to dress circle, $1; gallery, 75 cents.

Having Bad Luck.

Fish Commissioner Mills is having bad luck with his Eastern trout. The first lot received here several days ago, intended for distribution in the Eastern part of the State, nearly all died, and a duplicate lot received here last evening shared about the same fate, only about one fourth of them being alive this morning.

To-Nights Dance.

A Fortunate Druggist.

Mr. Edwin W. Joy for many years and now a prosperous druggist on the corner of Stockton and Market streets in San Francisco, probably never dreamed of rivaling in wealth the medicine kings of the country. But various rumors having been floating around to the effect that he has struck it big, an Examiner reporter was detailed to unearth the cause, and after much difficulty unraveled the following story:

It seems that about seven years ago an English physician, a great student of botany, located in this city. His practice was not extensive, and yet the few cases that came to him attracted no little attention. His success seemed to be in the treatment of liver and kidney disorders, and vitiated blood. In fact his ability to cope with these common complaints was marvelous. He seemed almost infallible, and his quiet modest methods of his well kept secret was as much a mystery as himself. After his departure about a year later Mr. Joy determined to fathom the secret, and copying all the prescriptions he had filled for the erratic doctor he began a systematic analysis. In his examination he discovered running all through the prescriptions for liver and kidney troubles, vitiated blood and stomach disorders a couple of vegetable extracts indigenous to California, so simple and so well known under homely every day names to every school boy as to entirely dissipate the suspicion that they were the active principles involved. So certain, however was Mr. Joy that he had discovered the secret, that he embodied the new elements in a preparation of Sarsaparilla to disguise the taste, and put it before his customers under the modest name of Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla. Immediately the same marvelous stories came back of its astonishing effects, and the mystery was solved, and the talk it has created has already caused it to step into prominence, and orders pour in daily from all over the coast. And thus another California industry leaps into existence.—S. F. Examiner.

ANDY WAS ALL RIGHT.

How an Indiana Agricultural Humiliated a Chicago Business Man. Andy Arbuckle, from Tipton County, Ind., came to Chicago one day last week with a car load of hogs. After he had sold them the purchaser, writes Ed. R. Pritchard in the Arkansas Traveler, handed Andy a check on the bank for his money, saying, as he did so: "You can get that cash now, or wait until you get home, Mr. Arbuckle, if you do not care to take the risk of carrying the currency with you."

"Guess I'll just get the money on it, if it's all the same to you, mister," replied Andy. "Yes, so I've heard," assented Andy, "but I've bin hustlin' long for darned near forty years, an' the feller that gits a dollar from me has mighty near allus gits me two fer it 'fore he gits it."

The dealer smiled and made no reply. He had seen such scenes before. Old Andy went to the bank, drew his money and set out to see the sights. He took a cable car into the city and began his tour of inspecting Chicago's many fine business buildings, gazing in at the shop windows, etc. He had just halted in front of the Eden Musee, and was staring at the wax figure of a tramp which stands at the entrance, when a dapper looking fellow seized him by the hand and exclaimed: "Why, how are you, Uncle Andy, and when did you leave old Tipton?"

Uncle Andy looked the fellow a moment, and then said: "Kinder 'pears to me I'd order kinder that mug of yours, but you've got it on me this time, I guess."

"You used to know Scott Hawkins, didn't you?" "Thunder, yes; you're not his son Rafe, that run away from home."

"Yes, I'm Rafe Hawkins, and I am mighty glad to see you, Uncle Andy." "So'm I, Rafe. How yer makin' it--layin' up any dust these days?" "Well, yes, a little; and that reminds me. I have just drawn a prize in a lottery, down the street here and was going to get the money on it when I met you. Con the whip me, and after I get it we'll go out and see the town."

"Say, Rafe," said the old man, as he held his hand on the young fellow's shoulder, "I'm a Hoosier, an' I live down in the Tipton County slasher. I know my face look like I didn't know erufft fer go in out of the wet, but I've got er pet calf down ter home, an' ef I thought that brute hadn't got gum than ter be taken in by your little game, I'd trade it off for a yaller dog, then shoot the dog. U's Hoosers, Rafe, don't put on no style, but we've got scholastic an' we read the papers; an' some of us don't take the trouble ter talk as well as we know how, but we ain't allus asleep when our eyes is shut."

Before he had finished his little speech the confidence man, seeing his mistake, was attempting to get away, but old Andy held him fast. Just then an officer happened along, and he turned "Rafe" over to him with a short explanation. The fellow who had tackled him was one of the slickest confidence men in the West, and as the policeman knew him he was soon behind the bars in a cell at the Central station.

GETTING INFORMATION.

A Reporter's Experience with the Patronage of a Philanthropic Institution. It was the evening of the graduating exercises in a philanthropic institution. Said a New York Sun reporter to the lady in charge rustling around in the dignity of a new black silk:

"How many graduates have you?"

"Oh, dear me, are you a reporter. I just dread to see one come in. They never get anything right. I never knew one to think they do it on purpose. It is too mean for anything. I hate--"

"But will you tell me the number of graduates?"

"Oh, ever so many, and they are just the brightest girls. Oh, it is such a wonderful thing that this institution can educate them as it does. It is perfectly splendid. I don't suppose its any use to tell you about it, for you won't get it right any way."

"What do they graduate in?"

"Why, every thing most. That's the idea of the institution, to make them so self-reliant and ready for emergencies and--"

"Who are the patrons of the institution?"

"Oh, nice people. Every body ought to be interested in it. They would be, too, if the papers took it up in the right way, but they won't. They never get anything right, the reporters--Oh, I can't tell you how they twist things."

"How many instructors do you employ?"

"Oh, we have the loveliest teachers. I'll go and ask Miss B-- to come and tell you about them. She knows them personally--all the little family history, you know. But of course we don't want you to publish that. Papers are just filled with every one's private affairs now. It is just horrid, but I suppose the reporters don't care what they say if they just get their pay. Excuse me; I'll go and speak to Miss Smith, and she will rustle away. The reporter waited while they rustled together, and approaching the lady, said: "Oh, I think she's lovely in that dress. You know I advised her to put those revers on--so much more becoming than a plain waist. Oh, there's that dreadful reporter. I'm tired to death telling him about things. You tell him about the teachers, won't you, dear, and put those roses up a little nearer your chin."

"If I don't know any thing about it, and I'm busy; I'm on the flower committee."

"Well, we might as well let it go. I've told him about it, and he got it all wrong, any way. It is perfectly awful the way those reporters misconstrue things and never get any thing right."

A Tough Mountaineer.

One of the pluckiest fellows that ever lived in Montana is John Myers. He is twenty years old, and has just gone through a thrilling experience. He is a cowboy and was hunting for horses with a party on the Still Water river. He was missing the other night when the others came in. It was thought he had slipped at some "square meal" house and no trace was felt for his safety. Two days after the men in the camp noticed a dark object slowly sliding down the side of an opposite bluff. It was Myers. Both of his legs were broken and his head felt terribly lacerated. He was weak from loss of blood, and the exposure he had undergone, dragging himself along for thirty hours in the snow. His horse stumbled and threw him on the rocks and ran away. He crawled up the side of steep bluffs, where few men could walk.

Grandmother's Law.

A fond grandmother told the following story of a grandchild: "An aunt was talking to her of God's laws and of obeying them, when the child surprised her by saying: 'Well, it is a good deal easier to obey God's laws than it is grandma's--she has so many.'"

THE AMERICAN BOY.

His Reverence as Well as His Generosity Illustrated by Two Anecdotes. J. T. Trowbridge, in an article in the North American Review, both criticizes and praises the American boy--criticizes his irreverence and disobedience, praises his conscientiousness and generosity when these qualities are appealed to in a way to bring them out. To illustrate he tells two clever stories which he says are true. The first illustrates disobedience and disrespect, and shows how American parents are apt to encourage them. "It is Sunday evening," and a western farmer is smoking his pipe on the back porch, while young Josh, his namesake and heir, is playing with the dog in the yard. Old Josh takes his pipe out of his mouth and remarks that it is time for young Josh to go to bed for the cow.

The junior makes no reply, but keeps on teaching Congo to give his paw. Then the senior repeats his observation, to which he manages to give a little more of the tone of command. "I tell ye, Josh, ye must go for the cows."

"I do" waver, grumbles young Josh. "Quit yer foolin' an' go along!" says old Josh.

"I shant," snarls back the junior. "I tell you to go," exclaims the elder. "I tell you I won't," mutters the boy.

"Wal, never mind," says the father; "mebbe they'll come home."

The other story gives a more agreeable picture. It must be said, however, that this boy was only six years old. What he would develop into can only be surmised. "He had a cake," says Mr. Trowbridge, "a portion of which his cousin Minnie coveted. She accordingly reminded him, as she was fond of doing, when she had a point to gain, of what 'the Bible says' about doing to others as we would be done by. 'Now you know, Willie, if I had the cake you would want half of it.' Willie hesitated a moment between a categorical and a conciliatory duty, and then said honestly: 'I should want all of it.' With tears in his eyes, but resolutely choking down his grief, he handed over to her the entire cake, which she walked off complacently nibbling."

SHE LIKED HIM.

How a Faith-Finding Woman Made Herself Extremely Kittenious. People who have formed the habit of finding fault with every thing and on all occasions, not only render themselves disagreeable to those with whom they come in contact, but frequently place themselves in very awkward positions. This says the Young People's Weekly, was the experience of a lady who, while attending service in a church in Providence, R. I., not long since, forgot that it is better to worship God than to spend the time in criticizing the preacher.

The minister in question was a young man, scarcely twenty-one years of age, and was widely known as the "boy-preacher." On the particular Sabbath he had exchanged with one of the city clergymen and his wife, who looked older than her husband, accompanied him. She was ushered into the pastor's pew, while the minister passed through the vestry and thence into the pulpit by a private staircase.

There were many persons in the congregation who had never seen the young minister, and there was a noticeable buzz of surprise when the boyish figure mounted the pulpit and took his seat. A strange lady was seated by the side of the preacher's wife, and she began the following dialogue:

"Is that young thing pastor of this church?"

"No, that is Rev. Mr. D--."

"Goodness me! I don't want to hear him preach. Why, he's nothing but a boy!"

After a really eloquent sermon, which, if it had no other effect, changed the opinion of the strange lady, she turned to her neighbor and said:

"Pretty good sermon, wasn't it? I like him, don't you?"

"As the 'boy' descended from the pulpit and came to where his wife was standing, the quietly took his arm, and, turning to the astonished stranger, replied, with a smile: "Of course! I ought to, for he is my husband!"

MIND AND DISEASE.

Two Interesting Reminiscences Related by an Indianapolis Physician. A Journal reporter and one of the leading physicians of Indianapolis were recently talking about the mind as a factor in disease, when the latter said: "It is a powerful factor. No good physician neglects to note the mental condition of his patient in his diagnosis. If he did he would be overlooking one of the most important things in the case."

"Let me tell you one or two incidents that have come under my observation to illustrate the effect of the mind over the body. One of these was very sad, the other exceedingly ludicrous. Some time ago there was a lady and gentleman spending the winter here in the city. Just previous to their coming here they had lost their only children--a grown son and a grown daughter--in a skating disaster at St. Louis, the ice in the river having broken and the couple having been drowned before assistance could reach them. Well, of course, this was a great blow to the fond parents. They were almost overcome with grief at the sad event, and the result of it was--as it is in every case of the kind--they clung to each other with a love and affection they had never known before. These people came to Indianapolis to spend the winter after this trouble, and while here the husband was taken with typhoid fever, and in spite of all that could be done for him he died. Several days before his death it was known that he could not recover, and he and his wife talked over the future with the same composure that other persons would talk over a brief separation. She hardly shed a tear, seeming utterly resigned to what was coming. I said, the man died, his funeral was held, and his wife sat by his coffin without the slightest show of grief. Spectators were astonished. Under the circumstances they looked for her to be completely prostrated. After the funeral she said to me that she would soon follow; that it was only a temporary separation. Well, sir, that woman lost her appetite, refused to eat, grew weaker, and in one week from her husband's funeral hers was held in the same room."

"How do you account for this; was there no ailment of any kind?"

"None at all. Her whole mind and soul were centered on the one thing until the thought absolutely withdrew from all power from the body to discharge its functions and the result was she died--a real case of what has been poetically described as death from a broken heart."

"What of the other case?"

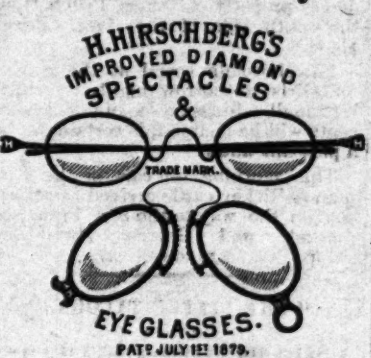

"It was very different from this, yet it illustrates the power of the mind over the body as well forcibly. Some time ago a very intellectual and highly-accomplished young lady here in the city holding a pin in her mouth, swallowed it, or, as she thought, swallowed it. The thought of what she had done, the very idea of that pin being in her stomach, threw her instantly into the most violent spasms and convulsions. I was summoned to see her, and found her in a very critical condition, cold sweat all over her body, convulsion following convulsion, and altogether in an alarming situation to her friends. Here's the funny circumstance: The young lady wore false teeth, and in one of her convulsions threw them out on the floor, and the pin, which had all the time been sticking up behind the plate, fell down with them. Every body, of course, roared with laughter, and the young lady was as quick as a flash to be taken in."

The immediate symptoms of Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, are a distressing sense of weight, oppression and fullness in the stomach, heartburn, loss of appetite, foul breath, belching, flatulency, nausea, pains in the shoulders and breast. Dr. Hensley's Dandelion Tonic promotes healthy digestion and removes all unhealthy symptoms. Sold by William Fungler.

A recent arrival at Castle Garden expected to find his uncle, who lives in Alaska awaiting him. Now he realizes that this is a big country.

It should be generally known that Dr. Hensley's Dandelion Tonic insures a hearty appetite and increased digestion, dispels nervous depression and low spirits, overcomes lack of energy and wakefulness, and will infuse new life and strength into the weakest invalid. Sold by William Fungler.
